China after the US Election: Where now for globalism?

Donald Trump's "America First" agenda gave China an opportunity to reposition itself as a champion of globalisation.

- How could the outcome of the 2020 US presidential election shape China's domestic and foreign policy?
- In the aftermath of COVID-19, does China have the capacity to continue its power projection around the region, or must it focus instead on domestic economic growth?

India: Can the government execute vital structural reform to rebuild the economy?

A severe national lockdown, a soaring number of COVID-19 cases, a clash with China at a disputed Himalayan border, along with other destabilising factors, have heavily impacted India's economy.

- What policy areas should India prioritise in rebuilding the economy?
- What impact will the tensions with China have on the two countries' economies, business and trade?
- What are the geopolitical implications?

Investing for Good: Has the pandemic shifted Asian ESG investing further towards social impact?

Large asset owners in Asia, including pension funds and sovereign wealth funds, have started to integrate ESG factors into their investment strategies. The COVID-19 pandemic has raised the 'S' in ESG up the agenda, with investors looking at how companies are treating their employees and communities at a time of economic hardship.

- To what extent will these investors' changing view of ESG influence Asia's sustainable and impact investing environment?

Key speakers include:

- Suyi Kim, Head of Asia Pacific, CPP Investments
- Laura Cha, Chairman, Hong Kong Exchanges and clearing (HKEK)
- Ameera Shah, CEO, Metropolis Healthcare
- Naveen Jindal, Chairman, Jindal Steel & Power
